An Elective Ruter in England-

An Euctors journal calls attention to the very urious circoustance that the Prime Minister of sturies for the sovereign to desigrate the Prime Minister, but his choice was usually limited to three or four persons thrown up by the mostline. That choice became still further narrowed when the rule was recognized that a Prime Minister must have the support of a majority of Parliament. No statist will accept a portfolio unless he is sure of that support. But of late years no choice at all is left to the monarch. The two great parties by which the people are divided elect their leaders. lindehous was the elected leader of the Liberals for a long time, and entil he resigned. The Murquis of flurrington has been elected to fill bla place. The parties who purticipate in the election are the memsens of the party in noth houses of Parliament. If Discussive about he beaten on any government proposition, the Queen would have to send for the Marquis of Hartington. There is no other choice left upon to her. The same is the care with Disraeli at this memont. He is the elected leader of the Tory party in Parliament. When Gladstone was defeated rorrows but to send for Disraell.

smeet by a President elected for an indefinite time by the majority of both houses of Parliament. This President the severeign has no power to resist. The Queen wast send for him and appoint him when the time somes, for he alone will have the control of Parlargent. To be sure, one resource is left to the sovare go to dissolve the Parliament of which the leader for the time being has the support. But then the scinics of the question is not with the sovereign but the people. If they sustain the leader the sovereign has to knuckle under. The system is clumsy and expension, but it nevertheless has features about it of a admirable observers. Under it no elective premier in somewhat ornate yet becoming style. The whole can hold office one moment after he has lost the conthence of the people. Popular support is the main lars. We learn that His Highness intends to turn makelet of his retention in power. NOTES OF THE WEEK. The Advertiser sighs for a "Bergh." Make it an ice-berg, neighbor, and we will back you. Ultima Thule Lodge No. 1, I. O. G. T. has changed its hour of meeting from 7:30 to 7 o'clock until further notice. The Hawaiian Guards will turn out for Arill onlight, on Friday evening next, at half-past 7 o'clock

The sale of real estate known as Buffem's Hall, advertised by Mr. Bartow for Saturday, Oct. 16, has been postponed until Tuesday, the 19th icet, at 12 o'clock, on the premises, Hotel street. JACKSON VS. PADKEEN.-This action of fort was tried on Monday last, and resulted in a verdict for damages. A criminal action is still pending against Mr. Padeken which will be tried on Hawall, RUN INTO.-On Sunday evening as a gentleman and lady of this town were enjoying a quiet drive on the Palama road, their carriage was run into from behind by a couple of Chinamen on horseback. The shock was so great us to throw the occupants of the carriage both to the ground, but happily without serious injury, while the carriage was much damaged, one wheel being completely wrecked. We have an lilustration of the duliness of the times in the way the Advertiser calls the Islander to account for during to speak of a celestial basketmaker which the former paper mentioned over a year ago. If it were not so evident that it was only done to help fill up, one might be led to believe that the Advertiser had copyrighted the Chinaman.

Matts -On Friday night or Saturday look out for the steamer Vasco de Gama with the mail. The City of Melbourne will be due on the succeeding Monday. Quite a number of Honolulu residents are expected on these steamers, among whom we note the names of H. M. Whitney, E. P. Adams and wife, and W. C. Parke. The Macgregor from the Colonies, will be due Tuesday.

12 We are pleased to learn that there is great tivity at present in the Order of Good Templars in Honolulu. Their meetings are well attended, and their ranks are being constantly reinforced by the admission of new members. The plans for the Good Tempiars Hall are approaching completion; it is probable that it will bea two stery building, coutaining a hall below for general purposes, and one above for the use of the Order.

Hes Margary's Breen Day -This holiday which occurs on Tuesday, the 16th of November, is approaching and it is time that loyal citizens were maklug some preparation for its suitable observance, We bear that a competitive drill will be engaged in by the various military companies of the place. It is also proposed to have a number of boat and canoe races in the harbor in the aftenoon; also a swimwill wish the last been descatched on both ming match in the same piace and a foot race on the lower part of Fort street, in each of which val-To a transmitted and the day for Tabiti, with suble prizes will be offered to the winners. We trust the programme may be so arranged and carried out as to render the day an enjoyable one.

THE WEATHER. - The fact that there has been a slight change in the weather since our last issue afords us material for an " item." For three or four days the trades blew gently, slightly modifying the oppressive heat; but slas! they have given it up, and the sea breeze again prevails. How thankful we ought to be that we have any weather. It is a "sweet boon." In fact we regard it as one of the t precious gifts of civilization to this benighted land. For, belt known, the Hawaiians in pre-Cookite times had no weather. We wonder what they tound to talk about pending the arrival of the annual ficet of canocs from Kausi.

He Stole Away - A young gootleman made his appearance among us a lew months ago, from the Colonies, Roberts by name, and immediately issued posters notifying the Honolulu public that be would deliver a lecture at the Theatre on the sub-Jeet "Greater love both no man than this, that a man will lay down his life for his friend." But for some reason, the aforesaid public did not take stock in him, and his audience was limited to two individuals. He subsequently attempted to manifest his religious inclinations by prayer-meeting exhortstions, but there being no money in that kind of a thing, be finally "went back" on his principles, and his creditors simulatneously, by taking passage in the Rayenstondale.

A Suggestion -The premises owned and occupied by Gov. Kanoa between King and Merchant streets, can hardly be called ornamental in their present condition. They are in a very conspicuous loenlity,-in fact we should imagine unpleasantly so for a private residence. It occurred to us the other day in passing, that if the lot could be purchased by the Government, and all the buildings and rubbish removed, what an elegant little park or square it would make. Inclosed with an Iron fence, and planted with shrubbery and trees, and provided with convenient seats, what a jolly little breathing place it would be. And if a statue of Kamehameha the Great,-say in concrete for the present,-could be placed in the centre, it would also become a valuable promoter of patriotism, fine arts etc.

Twe Levanno Mausonery -This graceful little

Gothic edifice is now completed and is a credit to its architect, Mr. Lishman who has succeeded most admirably in combining simplicity and elegance, the result being in perfect harmony with the life of the beloved Prince whose ashes will soon be committed to its sanctuary. It is built of concrete, with Regions is now an elective afficet. It has been the a state roof, in the form of a Greek cross, and is 24 feet in length and the extreme height is 31 feet. There is an open porch on the front 9 feet in width. The four gables are surmounted by crosses, and in each, with the exception of the front, are two narrow windows of stained glass, above which are small cruciform ventilators. The floor is of smooth rement, and the inside walls are white stucco. The doors, as well as the interior trimming, are all of stained oak, and were constructed by Mr. Way, who has executed the job with his usual skill and good taste. The tomb stands in the center of a small enclosure a short distance from the west corner of the church. On the north and west sides the lot is bounded by the stone wall of the church yard, and on the manka and south sides there is a temporary picket fence which is to be replaced soon with a andsome fron fence. This enclosure is now in process of being laid out and will be planted with evergreeus and other mre trees. A smooth cemented carriage-way leads from the gate to the mansoleum, sweeping around an open circular plat about midway, where rich exotics will in the future flash their where the people, the Queen had no other course to brilliant flowers like consers in the sunshine, and their pertume, an oblation of aweet incense will as-Thes it follows that fingland is governed at this | cend day and night to heaven. In addition to these works H. H. Kanaina has at his private expense rebuilt the wall around the Kawaishao church in the most substantial manner. It is laid up in cement, and is surmounted with a coping of concrete blocks which gives it a fluished aspect. The main gate way is in the same position as beretofore, on the north side of the church-yard looking down King street. It is flanked on either side with narrow gates for foot passengers. There has also been constructed a large gate-way on King street directly mauka of the church, and a smaller one leading into the burying-ground on the makal side. -The Kawalahao church, or the "King's chapel" as it used to be sometimes called was commenced about the year 1836, and was completed on the 21st. As the vessel has papers from the British Governof July 1842. His late majesty Kamehmeha III., and premier Kinau, were foremost amongst the originators of the enterprise. The former manifested the sincerity of his interest by a gift of $3000. Among the list of subscribers we find the name of the venerated Kanaina who is the only survivor of those chiefs who assisted in work. The greater part of the actual labor was done by the able-bodied men of the church, who numbered about a thouthe Plaintiff in the sum of One thousand dollars or horses, to the building site; in trimming the amount, he apportioning to each his quotablocks to the requisite size, in procuring timber ing. recently related to us the following interesting in-A number of Mynas were in the habit of infesting his poultry yard, and, with that andacity for which they are noted, robbing the fowls of their food. One day a number of them overstepped the bounds of prudence so far as to enter the hen-house where four of them were captured, and as a warning to their companions their wings were clipped and they were turned loose in the yard. They everytime the chickens were fed, carrying up pieces of meat and kernels of core in their bills until the disabled birds were satisfied. This certainly looks and benevolence. We remember a story told us some time ago by a resident of Kauai which illustrates even more fully the reasoning power possessed by some varieties of birds. The subject of it was a stray Io, a variety of hawk not often found away from the Island of Hawaii, where it lives a secluded life, not favorable, one would suppose to any developement of intelligence. He was riding slowly along a lonely road one afternoon with no company but his horse and a small terrier who was a rod or two abend, when he noticed a bird, which heat first took for an owl, circling round a few feet above the dog as if it had some designs upon him. Our friend stopped his horse to watch the proceedings. Presently the bird seemed to be struck with a new idea, and flew off a short distance to a heap of stones from which it selected one about the size of a goose's egg, and holding it fast in its foot, it returned to the vicinity of the unconscious dog, and again hovered over his bead, as if with the intention of dropping the stone upon him and killing him. After a mir ute or two, however, it seemed to come to the conclusion that the thing was impracticable, and flying laboriously back to the heap of stones, it carefully deposited its burden and left for parts unknown. If this performance did not evince a power to reaso and calculate, we should be happy to receive a more

WORKMEN'S PEACE CONFESENCE. - PARIS, Septem ber 7 .- The Workmen's Peace Conference unas ly passed the principal resolution before it, which sol emply protests against the present armament of Eo rope as an intolerable burden upon the people.

Cuicago, September 10th .- The storm that broke on the lake last night is said to have been, by old sea-captains, one of the worst of the season. Several disasters have already occurred, while still ers have been reported, and much damage has re sulted to vessels.

JACKSONVILLE, Illinois, September 10th .- Tremendous rain storms, accompanied by fearful lightning and high wind commenced here last night at nine o'clock and raged most of the night. The storm was followed by a rapid fall of some 200 in ten

Sugar Crop Increasing .- The sugar and molasses crops of Louisiana are yearly increasing in amount, though the prospects are not at all fair for them soon to reach the quantities produced in antewar times. The New Orleans Price Current estimates the sugar crop for 1874-5 at 116,867 hogsheads against 89,498 the preceeding season, and the molasses crop at 11,516,828 gallons; while the growing erop never looked better, and is expected to exceed that of last year. As the country consumes now about 2,000,000,000 pounds of sugar of all descriptions per annum, and as an immense number of the fine sugar estates in Cuba have been destroyed by fire this season, prices must rule high, and the United States cannot afford to see that struggle which s touches the pockets of her consumers much longer

New York, September 10th, - A Washington special says that Fred. Douglass, speaking of the Mississippi troubles, is reported to have said that wholesale atrocity and murders like those recently committed could only be perpetrated with the approval or connivance of the property-holding classes of the South. If the negroes must die at the South, his advice is, let them sell their lives as dearly as possible; let it be seen by those cowardly mobocrats that in attempting to slaughter the black men they invite the knife to their own throats and fire and rapine to their hearthstones, and they will cease.

Ton Eastern Press is much excited by the harrowing details of the Mountain Meadows massacre, brought out by the late trial of Lee. Such horrible murders in an enlightened country, in the nineteenth century, in an enlightened country, in the nineteenth century, and the guilty untried and unpunished for eighteen years after the notorious events, are enough to arouse feeling and call forth the strongest expressions of dissatisfaction with the non-action of the Government under which the murders were committed. The New York World strongly and truly says in regard to it : As long as any man concerned in the massacre re mains unhanged he will constitute a repreach to the American administration of justice."

THE U. S. Government seems to have adopted acive measures for putting a stop to the outrages of Mexican desperadoes along the Rio Grande. An or der has been issued from the Navy Department to make ready all its lightest draught vessels to patrol that stream and co-operate with the land forces in punishing the outlaws. The General in command of the Texas troops will have authority over the com bined military and naval forces. To each gunboat will be assigned a certain portion of the river, and as the guns of these vessels have generally a long range, they are expected to do effective work against the raiders. As the ascent of the river is made, its chann A is uncertain and navigation difficult; but the points for crossing cattle are to be specially guarded, and it is believed that the troops, acting in conjunction with the fleet, will be able to afford all the protection desired to the frontier settlers. CHICAGO, September 6 .- A Washington special says: There is a prospect of international trouble with Great Britain that may need another board of arbitration. Not long ago an American schooner the Gilbert C. Trufant was sold at Liverpool to British shipewners, in open violation of the provisions of our law. Minister Schenek attempted to prevent this sale, and notified the State Department of the violation of its regulations. A very lively corres pondence has been maintained between the authorities of the United States and Great Britain. Our people have requested the British Government to turn this vessel over to the United States that she may be libelled against her former owners.
